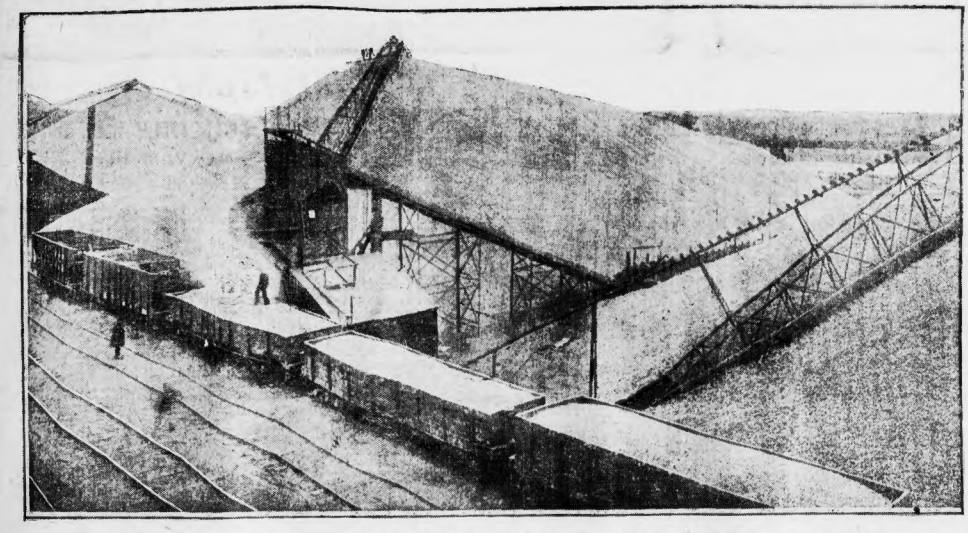
COAL PRICES JUMP ON STRIKE



PART OF GREAT COAL RESERVE OF LEHIGH VALLEY R. R. CO.—MEMBERS OF THE COAL TRUST.
Photograph is of mammoth heap of coal, weighing thousands of tons, piled up at Plainfield, New Jersey, in anticipation of a strike. It is only one of hundreds owned by the coal trust.

Trust Sends Up Rates in Boston From 75 Cents to $1.75 Per Ton on News of Order to Shut Down April 2—Orders Are Also Curtailed.

How Strike Ultimatum Has Raised Boston Coal Prices

SIZE.	NEW.	OLD.	ADVANCE.
Stove	$8.00	$7.25	$ .75
Egg	8.00	7.00	1.00
Chestnut	8.00	7.25	.75
Broken	8.00	6.50	1.50
Pea	7.00	5.25	1.75
Franklin	9.00	8.50	.50
Shamokin	8.50	7.50	1.00

Acting promptly upon receipt of the news that a big coal strike will begin on Monday, the Metropolitan Coal Company (Coal Trust) of Boston to-day advanced the price of coal from seventy-five cents to $1.75 a ton.

This jump in the price was made regardless of the fact that coal of all kinds is stored in and about Boston in great quantities. At the office of the various companies it was stated that the advance had been decided upon so that they might "husband the coal" and effect a "better distribution."

At none of the offices, it was learned by reporters of the BOSTON AMERICAN, could more than one ton of coal be bought at a time and at some of them it was stated that no coal at all would be sold unless he purchasers were customers of at least a year's standing.

TABLE OF NEW PRICES.

This is the table of new and old prices as made to-day:

	New	Old	Advance
Stove	$8.00	$7.25	$ .75
Egg	8.00	7.00	1.00
Chestnut	8.00	7.25	.75
Broken	8.00	6.50	1.50
Pea	7.00	5.25	1.75
Franklin	9.00	8.50	.50
Shamokin	8.50	7.50	1.00
Soft coal	5.00	4.25	.75

At 9:45 o'clock to day there had been no advance in the price of coal. Half an hour later the big jump was announced. In stove coal, the common basis of figuring the price, the price was raised seventy-five cents.

It is believed that this rise in the prices while there is so much coal on hand was made for the purpose of allowing the trust to make greater profits in the future as the strike advances, and the needs of consumers, particularly the poor people, who have not been able to lay in large supplies, become greater.

Statements were made about the coal for sale:

RESTRICTIONS IN SALES.

The Metropolitan Coal Company will not receive an order for more than one ton at $8 per ton.

The Wellington, Wild Coal Company refused to let any coal go to others than their customers of more than a year's standing. The price quoted to customers is $8.

Marston & Co., coal dealers, are unable to fill orders for more than one ton at $8. Curran & Burton have no hard coal, and were unable to-day to get any.

The Burnham Coal Company quoted stove coal at $8, and declared that no more coal would be had from the coal fields at any price.

F. J. Burnham, of the Burnham Coal Company, said to-day:

THIRTY DAYS' SUPPLY.

"There is enough coal in sight right here in Boston to last the dealers thirty days at the present rate of sale. Usually on the first day of April the wharves are pretty well emptied of coal, but we have anticipated the strike and have more than usual on hand at this time of the year.

"Coal dealers do not expect but the present trouble will last over a month at the most, as we feel that President Roosevelt will interfere.

Despite their confidence the price was jumped to-day, however.

SUICIDE IN CHURCH STARTLES WORSHIPPER

LONE SALEM DEVOTEE FOUND BODY OF SEXTON HANGING FROM PILLAR.

Special to the Boston American.

SALEM, March 30.—When Grace Episcopal Church was visited to-day by a Lenten worshipper the dead body of Maurice O'Connor, the sexton of the church, was found hanging to a pillar.

O'Connor was fifty-four years old and lived with his wife and two children at No. 54 William street. They could throw no light on the cause of his deed.

The police and the church authorities are reticent concerning the occurrence. Bishop McVickar is to preach at the church this evening, and it was feared that publicity attached to the hanging would affect the attendance.

STORER REFUSES TO SPEAK OF REMOVAL

VIENNA, March 30.—The retiring American Ambassador to Austria-Hungary, Bellamy Storer, has returned here from Egypt. He said:

"My resignation was requested March 6 in a telegram from the President, and was sent in March 7.

"I intend to return to America after having settled my personal affairs, but I think I shall not leave Vienna before the end of May. I intend in future to spend half the year in America and half in Europe."

Woman's Fate May Hang on Shots Fired at HUMAN HEAD TARGET

Cooper Trial Testimony Indicates Pistol Was Held Close to Northey's Skull.

Special to the Boston American.

AUGUSTA, Me., March 30.—As a result of the firing of five shots from the revolver with which it is alleged Mrs. Alice F. Cooper killed Charles D. Northey into the head of a dead man, Professor Whittier of Bowdoin College testified that the bullets fired a foot and more distant from the human target did not singe the hair nor leave any powder marks.

As it has been testified that both singed hair and powder marks were found on Northey's head, the prosecution will urge the testimony as evidence that Mrs. Cooper stood very near to her victim when she fired the shot, while the defense will argue that it goes to prove their contention that Northey shot himself.

Dr. Whittier said he used the Cooper revolver and fired five shots at the head of the corpse, from distances of one foot, six inches, three inches, one inch and three feet.

"The first shot," said the witness, "fired at a distance of one foot, entered the skull on the right side just behind and above the ear. I found grains of powder on the hair, but no singed hair and no powder on the flesh.

Found Singed Hair.

"The second shot, fired at a distance of six inches, entered skull an inch from the ear. I found singed hair and powder embedded in the tissue and on the hair.

"The third shot, fired at a distance of three inches, showed hair singed and powder on the hair and in flesh.

"The fourth shot was fired at a distance of one inch. The hair was singed and burned and a large amount of powder was embedded in the flesh.

"The fifth shot was fired from a distance of three feet. The hair was carried in the wound. I made no microscopic examination of the hair or tissues. The hair was not singed."

Professor Whittier said that he took fifty or sixty hairs from Northey's head, and had mounted seven of them on slides lettered A to G.

"Slides B, C and G," said Dr. Whittier, "each contains a hair that I think is slightly singed; slides D and F each a hair that is distinctly singed."

WIFE RAISES $90,000 TO SAVE APPLEYARD

To save her husband from criminal prosecution for his part in the wrecking of the German Bank of Buffalo, Mrs. Jay E. Appleyard, through her untiring efforts since her husband's arrest a year ago, has raised $90,000 in order to relinquish to the victims of the crash.

Mrs. Appleyard is a handsome young woman and lives in a fine apartment in Brooklyn. When seen by a reporter of the BOSTON AMERICAN to-day she declined to discuss the matter, in which she raised the large sum.

There is a disposition on the part of the creditors of the defunct bank to accept the offer of Mrs. Appleyard, and it is believed by her counsel, Frederick D. Wilkins, that the court will allow them to do so.

State street was astounded a year ago by the arrest of Mr. Appleyard. He was charged with giving notes to the bank which were secured by stocks and bonds, said to be worthless. The notes aggregated about $1,400,000.

He raised $400,000 on them.

Attorney Williams returned from Buffalo to-day, where he informed the receiver for the company that $90,000 will be turned over on the condition that criminal and extradition proceedings against Appleyard be dropped.

EUROPEAN TOUR ELECTION

BOSTON TEACHERS ARE NOW THE LEADERS

NEW CANDIDATES IN BOSTON ARE STILL BEING ENTERED—TREMENDOUS VOTING.

Over two hundred and sixty thousand ballots were cast yesterday by supporters of the several hundred New England school teachers who are candidates for the forty magnificent European tours which the BOSTON AMERICAN will give this Summer to the forty most popular New England women teachers.

Rachel Rosnosky, a very popular teacher in the Lewis School, Roxbury, to-day leads the several hundred Metropolitan candidates, after one of the liveliest days of voting since the election began. Miss Rosnosky received 8,050 votes, and is today credited with an even 34,000.

In sixth place in the Metropolitan Division to-day is Miss Idella E. Seldis, one of the candidates from the Elliot School, in the North End. The boys of the school have put remarkable work during the past few days and yesterday cast 12,044 votes for their favorite. Miss Seldis has to-day a total of 18,265 votes.

The West End is strongly competing with the North End of Boston in the European Tour Election. A candidate who has made remarkable gains for the few days she has been entered is Miss Elizabeth Hutchison of the Phillips School. Miss Hutchison is among those who would be entitled to an European tour if the contest were to close to-day, she is in eighteenth place, with 4,828 votes. Miss Hutchison received 2,824 votes yesterday.

After being forced down in the list somewhat, Miss Josie Poppiani, the candidate of the Washington School, received 5,000 votes yesterday, which makes her name one of the "high five" leaders. Miss Poppiani is in fifth place, with 20,074 votes.

Miss Elizabeth Sharry of the Lamartine and Miss Annie V. McGourty of the Bigelow School, Worcester, have forced Miss Alice G. O'Gara of Spencer into fifth place to-day. Miss Sharry has a total of probably gain of nearly 20,000 votes, while Miss McGourty was a close second.

Special Ballot a Winner.

This large number of ballots is due to the splendid work of the supporters of these candidates with the SUNDAY AMERICAN Special Ballot. They have turned in many orders from their friends for the SUNDAY AMERICAN in advance for thirty weeks, on each of which they received 1,000 votes, upon receipt of $1.50 to pay for the paper, by the European Tour Editor.

Cash prizes amounting to $1,000 are to be awarded in addition to the forty Summer tours to Europe.

MRS. COOPER FASCINATED BY NORTHEY'S GRINNING SKULL

WOMAN'S SOUL IS TORTURED BY UNCANNY SIGHT

SHRINKS FROM DEAD THING

By Eleanor Ames.

Special to the Boston American.

AUGUSTA, Me., March 30.—A more than ever uncanny thing, Charley Northey's skull filled with human brains, leered and grinned yesterday at Alice Cooper, with eyes that saw not and a mouth that could utter no word.

It was a hollow mockery of what had once been a great, compelling, controlling vital force, responsible for every thought, every act, every word, every emotion of a living man.

Now it was an insensate, deadened man, held in the confines of a useless shell, the semblance only of a human head. It grinned and leered maddeningly, and the known presence of human brains gave it a seemingly more horrid expression.

For almost the first time since the skull has been exhibited Alice Cooper looked upon it, gazing, as though fascinated, at what was once the frame work of Charley Northey's head and face.

Her eyes sought the floor often, but invariably they returned to that whitened sepulchre in which rested dead brains.

What was passing through her mind? Was her heart breaking, that the hands which painted the deadened brains within that skull could not also have given life, so that the mouth could send forth the words: Release this woman, she is innocent: "Charles Northey fired that shot. I held the pistol. I took a human life. Let Alice Cooper go free."

FACE GAVE NO TOKEN.

Or was she offering up a prayer of thanksgiving that the grinning mouth was forever closed and that the silence of the grave wrapped Charles Northey's death in mystery, so that no accusing finger or vengeful word could be spoken.

Little face gave no hint of the inner workings of the mind. She was pale, her great dark eyes were filled with pain, her dry parted lips quivered and twitched with pain.

She turned her head away and shrank against the railing as though seeking protection of her husband on the other side.

But she made no sound; she shed no tears.

She scarcely moved a muscle when Professor Whittier took the brain filled skull from its shroud like wrapping of white, and as he unlocked the top and disclosed the brains she was as one in a trance.

She watched him remove first one half of the upper portion of the human brains, then the other.

Only when he drew the knitting needle through the bullet hole made by the revolver which she bought, no matter who fired it, did she appear to know or feel or realize what was before her.

Then she drew a sharp, shuddering breath and turned her head away, leaning it upon her arm and looking ghastly in her pallor. And so she remained, not moving save when a shudder passed over her, while, with the deliberations and minuteness of a lecturer, Professor Whittier explained and illustrated to the jury the course that the deadly bullet must have taken through Charley Northey's brain in its route from temple to temple.

A TERRIBLE ORDEAL.

It was a test which few nerves would be strong enough to withstand.

It was an ordeal which would send many a woman into wild, maniacal ravings, or mercifully soften suffering by the oblivion of unconsciousness. Alice Cooper swayed neither hysterical nor faint.

She simply turned away her head, and the haunting expression of pain and sadness deepened on her marvellous eyes. Truly each day makes her more and more an enigma. And as each day, to the lay mind, increases the mystery which surrounds the death of young Northey.

If ever I longed, from the depth of my heart, for a miracle to be performed, it was when I watched the mocking, dead, brain-filled skull.

I longed for the superhuman power to reap upon that skull and cull: "Spirit of the murdered, speak forth and let the truth be known. In an innocent woman being mercilessly and fiendishly tortured because she was instrumental in taking your life! Or are guilty ones keeping their dread secret in the hope of escaping punishment?"

But I was helpless—helpless—helpless of mere humanity grappling with the mystery which was appalling.

Alice Cooper's torture neither began nor ended with the grinning brain filled skull. It was merely the climax of Alice Cooper's torture's body still pulsated with life, direct proof the gaping wound in search of the other.

HEART TORN ASUNDER.

She heard how they separated his head from the dead body, how Dr. Sukeforth stuck his fingers into the wound under the quivering brains by the bullet from the revolver she herself had bought. She was compelled to listen while Dr. Whittier told how, using the revolver which she bought and hid in the stairs and later placed in her pocket, and which is responsible for Charley Northey's death; aided by the cartridges which she also bought and secreted in the sideboard, he shot at rabbits, at hair from Charley Northey's scalp, at a dead human body, all by way of experiment.

Dear heaven, what were the tortures of the dark ages in comparison!

Mentally, Alice Cooper is hourly suffering the combined torment of the guillotine, the rack, the gallows.

This picture illustrates the position of Charles D. Northey, Jr., and of Mrs. Alice F. Cooper, when, according to the contention of the prosecution, the woman shot him. "A" marks where bullet entered, "B" where it lodged.

The State contends that the downward, backward direction of the bullet indicates that Northey was shot by Mrs. Cooper as she stood in the manner shown in the picture.

Points Made by Professor Whittier at Mrs. Cooper's Trial

He found no marked singeing of hair on Northey's head.

He found three hairs that he thought were singed and two that might have been singed.

He found no scorched or burned flesh.

He found no powder marks in the hair or on the flesh that he was sure of.

He admitted that washing with warm water and a sponge would remove the greater part of powder marks from the skin.

He declared that, in his opinion, a bullet taking the course in Northey's head would cause instant paralysis of the muscles of the legs and body, and instant loss of consciousness.

GREAT COAL STRIKE ORDERED APRIL 2

both the bituminous and anthracite coal fields and over half a million men. He will discuss with his cabinet to-day the proposal made to him by the bituminous operators, who have asked him to appoint a board to investigate the differences between them and the miners.

All the union miners in the anthracite fields have been ordered to go out next Monday, pending a conference between the operators and the miners' representatives. There is little hope of an agreement at this conference, and coal is being rushed to storage points all over the country, in anticipation of the great labor war which now seems inevitable.

Will Consult Miners.

The President will give the matter his most earnest consideration, but it is likely that before he shall take any definite steps toward the creation of such a commission he will ascertain the desires of the miners in the premises. It will be recalled that the anthracite coal strike commission of 1902 was appointed at the request of both operators and miners. In that instance, as in the present, the first public suggestion came from the operators.

If the President follows the precedent established then, he will now proceed to obtain the consent of President Mitchell and the other representatives of the miners in the hope of compromising differences, which threaten to become even more serious than the strike of 1902.

The President has received the following telegram from President John Mitchell of the Mine Workers' Union and Francis L. Robbins, one of the operators:

Indianapolis, Ind., March 29, 1906.
Hon. Theodore Roosevelt,
Washington.

Responding to your suggestion we have fulfilled our highest duties as citizens of our country by advocating a bituminous coal scale, on a reasonable compromise. We understand that a telegram has been sent to you to-night, purporting to speak for eighty per cent of the bituminous tonnage. That telegram does not represent the facts. At least one half the total tonnage in Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois is produced by operators who are willing to pay the compromise scale.

(Signed) JOHN MITCHELL,
FRANCIS J. ROBBINS.

The telegram received from the operators, to which the above message referred, was as follows:

Indianapolis, Ind., March 29, 1906.
The President,
Washington.

I have the honor of transmitting to you the following resolution, passed by coal operators assembled in this city:

Whereas, the coal operators and the representatives of the miners of the States of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and western Pennsylvania, having met in Indianapolis at the suggestion of the President of the United States for the purpose of endeavoring to agree upon a scale of wages and mining conditions for a period beginning April 1, 1906, and the parties having been unable to reach an agreement and having adjourned sine die, be it

Resolved, That we, the coal operators of the States of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Western Pennsylvania, representing at least 80 per cent of the tonnage in the territory involved, who have felt and still feel unable to pay any advance in wages at this time, do hereby propose that the President of the United States appoint a commission to investigate all matters which in the judgment of such commission have an important bearing upon or relation to the scale of wages which should be paid all classes of labor in and about the coal mines of the territory here involved, and other conditions being impartially related thereto upon by the United Mine Workers of America, such commission to report to the President of the United States its findings of facts, together with its recommendations.

That is further resolved, That such commission have power to administer oaths and compel attendance of witnesses.

(Signed)
JOHN H. WINDER, Chairman.

The soft coal operators of Illinois, Indiana and Ohio defeated the motion to give their union employes a restoration of the 1903 scale, which includes an advance of 5.56 per cent. in wages, and now nothing remains to bring a suspension of mining in the bituminous fields but the formal action of the Miners' Union declaring a strike, which is expected to take place to-day.

Bitter Feeling in Session.

The final break between miners and operators came at the last moment of a day which of all the sessions of the joint convention was the most bitter. John Mitchell had asserted that the railroad-owned coal mines were responsible for the present condition in turn, Mitchell himself had rested for a short time under the imputation of having received a favor from the Illinois Central railroad, made by Clarence Parker, its purchasing agent.

But Mr. Mitchell, it may be said, before the heated controversy ended, was entirely cleared of the charge contained in the insinuation. It having been shown that W. D. Ryan, another labor leader, had once obtained free transportation for a

CONFERENCE ON HARD COAL TO BE MERE FORMALITY

NEW YORK, March 30. The meeting of the anthracite operators and miners in this city on Thursday to discuss their differences with the view of effecting an adjustment, is regarded as a mere formality, and no settlement is anticipated or thought likely. The positions of both the operators and miners are apparently unalterable, and with a general strike in the anthracite field going into effect on Monday, the temper of the conference will not be improved.

The miners are fixed in their demands for union recognition and an eight-hour day and an increase in wages. The operators are equally firm in the declination of these demands and make a counter proposition that the miners continue for another three years under the award of the anthracite commission. This counter proposition will be refused without doubt.

A general strike in the anthracite field of the 150,000 miners means a weekly loss to the miners of $2,500,000. The operators have 10,000,000 tons supply of coal on hand, which they calculate will last only for ten months. With the price of coal advanced, should such an advance be depended on, the operators will make a comfortable profit.

KILLED BY LIVE WIRE; GETS $367 ON LIFE

Special to the Boston American.

SALEM, March 30. Mrs. Guy Cowperwaite, whose husband was killed in the storm of March 9, to-day received $367, the full amount of an accident insurance policy held her husband by a Boston concern. There was a question as to whether Cowperwaite died of heart disease or was killed by a live wire.

MRS. COOPER SITS AS IF HYPNOTIZED

possibly is singed. The hairs on slides A and E are not singed, I think. On the hair on slide B are some grains of what might be powder.

Powder Marks on Flesh.

Dr. Whittier further testified that he had experimented to see whether singed hair and powder marks on flesh would be destroyed by decomposition.

"I fired a revolver at the body of a rabbit from a distance of three inches," he said, "and on examination I found marked singeing of hair and powder imbedded in the flesh.

"Then I buried the body, and a month later dug it up. There was practically no change. The hair was still singed and the powder marks still in the flesh.

This testimony was given to offset the theory that it is believed the defence will present that singed hair and powder marks disappeared while Northey's body was buried.

DEFENCE OBJECTED.

Dr. Whittier had told of the experiments he had made with a knitting needle, a brain and Northey's skull, and in the afternoon County Attorney Leigh asked him to take the brain, place it in the skull, run the needle through it and explain the course of the needle to the jury.

Mr. Heath objected, but the witness was allowed to proceed and an exception was noted. Mr. Leigh asked:

"Have you placed the brain with which you experimented before in the skull?"

A.—I have.

Q.—Have you run the needle through it from the entrance wound to the exit wound? A.—I have.

Q.—Is it a normal brain? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Is it a good fit? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Now, for the purposes of illustrating, will you remove the top of the skull and the top of the brain and show the jury the course of the needle through the brain in Charles Northey's skull.

Again Mr. Heath objected, was overruled and saved an exception. He stated that he wished it understood that he excepted to all this testimony.

"What effect would washing have on singed hair?" he asked.

Mr. Heath objected on the ground that the question was too broad and said that a hypothetical question should be put.

Q.—Have you made any experiments along that line? A.—I have.

Q.—Will you describe them? A.—I fired a revolver at a piece of scalp covered with hair and washed the scalp with warm water and a soft sponge.

Q.—To what extent was the hair singed?

Again Mr. Heath objected, saying that the conditions under which the experiment was made should be given.

Q.—To what conditions did you make the experiment? A.—I took a piece of the scalp from Charles Northey's head. I used a duplicate of the Cooper revolver and held it six inches from the scalp when I fired. The hair was singed slightly and curled. Some of the hairs were curled sharply at the ends. The hair around the wound was twisted by the passing of the bullet. It might be called curling.

USED NORTHEY'S SCALP.

Q.—What portion of the scalp did you use. A.—I took it from the left side of the head, opposite the wound of entrance.

Q.—Continue. A.—After washing, I found evidences of singed hairs. They were more difficult to detect. Some of the ends were broken off. I had no trouble in detecting the singeing, however, and washing removed the traces to only a slight extent.

Q.—Will you explain the functions of the internal capsules? A.—They convey motor impressions to the nerve endings. The fibres run from the centres to the muscles of the limbs and to many parts of the body.

Q.—Assuming that a bullet of the size used in this revolver took the course you indicated through the brain, what effect would it have on the person shot? A.—I should say it would cause instant loss of consciousness and instant paralysis of the muscles of the legs and body.

Q.—This may be a foolish question, but what do you mean by paralysis? A.—The loss of power to use the muscles, to move any part of the body.

Q.—Have you performed some experiments with the Cooper revolver and with a duplicate of it? A.—I have.

DESCRIBES EXPERIMENTS.

Q.—What experiments have you performed, and under what conditions? A.—Using a duplicate of the revolver, I fired at the body of a rabbit from a distance of one foot, at the hair from Charles Northey's scalp at a distance of one foot, two inches, eight inches, six inches, three inches and one inch. With the Cooper revolver I fired at the scalp of a dead human body from distances of three feet, one foot, six inches, three inches and one inch.

And fired at the head of a human dead body. The body belonged to the medical school and had been preserved for dissection. It was in a fine state of preservation. It was fixed in an upright position and the head turned so that the pistol could be pointed. The hair was fairy abundant and about the same as Northey's, perhaps a little coarser. I used the Cooper revolver and the cartridges given me by Sheriff Hunt.

SENATOR PUPIL OF A LOBBYIST

Buttrick Studied Law in Office of Man Who Was Hired to Kill the Overtime Bill.

HELPED TURN THE TRICK

Why Is Allan G. Buttrick, Senator from the Second Worcester District, so violently opposed to the bill prohibiting the employment of women and children at night in factories?

Buttrick is chairman of the Committee on Labor of the Legislature, and he fought the bill at every meeting of the committee at which it was considered.

Buttrick seized the opportune time and made the motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed in the Senate. Then he lost the fight to kill the bill.

Buttrick is a graduate of the law office of Charles G. Bancroft.

Bancroft now lives at Natick. A few years ago he lived at Clinton and practiced law there. He represented that city in the House.

Buttrick was in the office of Bancroft two years at Clinton.

Bancroft is the lobbyist for the Arkwright Club, which is composed of big manufacturers, many of them the textile kings.

Bancroft, who was the law tutor of Senator Buttrick, has been a busy man at the State House this session. He is registered as the "legislative agent for the Arkwright Club of 53 State street, Boston, on all matters affecting the textile manufacturing interests of Massachusetts."

"Do you know a man by the name of Charles G. Bancroft?" Buttrick was asked by a reporter for the BOSTON AMERICAN.

"I see what you are driving at. You are trying to establish a connection between Bancroft and myself," was the reply of Buttrick.

"It is true that I studied law in his office, but I severed my business relations with him six or eight years ago. He has not influenced me."

Labor leaders have thought it worth while to explain to members of the Legislature the former partnership of the Senator from Worcester and the lobbyist for the textile manufacturers.

JEROME IN HIS OWN DEFENSE ON INSURANCE

Says He Has Felt Bitterest Condemnation for Certain Transactions.

NEW YORK, March 30.—District Attorney Jerome, in an extended interview in the Times today, reviews his course in connection with the life insurance cases now in the courts. He outlines his policy with regard to the special grand jury which he has asked Justice Dowling to summon.

He says that he will present to this grand jury every bit of evidence which he has at his command, and which he hopes to secure between now and the time the jury will begin its deliberations if appointed.

"There has been in the whole insurance situation much misconception," he says, "the major part of which has been entirely honest and natural, but to small part of which has been wilful and dishonest. It is extremely natural that laymen, perceiving that one group of transactions constitutes a criminal offense, should infer that all groups of transactions involving the same element of moral obligation were equally within the criminal law.

"While it may be that all groups of transactions involving some moral wrong should be within the criminal law, it is not a fact. The hysteria which has led to the denunciation of certain transactions as crimes is met by some at the other extreme by endeavoring to justify the same transactions in the form of morals.

"In dealing with the situation, I have been placed in a very difficult position. I have been compelled as a lawyer and under my oath of office to deal with problems in an official capacity purely from a technical legal standpoint, while as a man I have felt the bitterest condemnation for the very transactions in which I was unable to detect criminality within the meaning of the law."

MURDER AND SUICIDE IN BLISS STABLES

NEW YORK, March 30.—A mysterious case of murder and suicide occurred in the stables of Cornelius N. Bliss, the banker, yesterday, when David Burhans, the coachman, shot Thomas Hegerty, his assistant, and then turned the revolver upon himself. As the men had been fast friends, no cause for the double tragedy can be assigned.

PARSONS WILL TELL CRIMES OF RAILROADS

New England Roads' Discriminations and Extortons to Be Exposed.

FIRST ARTICLE SUNDAY

The Crimes of New England Railroads' is a general title for the series of articles which Professor Frank Parsons is to write for the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN, showing how this section of the country has been put under tribute and the heel of commercial oppression and depression by foreign capitalists.

The series will be the most vivid treating of a chapter of wrongdoing in New England yet penned. The first article will appear in next Sunday's BOSTON AMERICAN.

The articles will cover the following subjects:

1.—"Under the Heel of a Foreign Syndicate."

2.—"Taxation Without Representation—Unreasonable Charges on Local Traffic, and Often on Through Business Also."

3.—"Railroad Favoritism. This article will tell of unjust discrimination between persons and places in favor of the Standard Oil Company, the Beef Trust and other big shippers. It will tell of unjust discrimination in favor of foreign goods against domestic manufacturers.

4.—"The Railroad Kingdom and the Railroad Kings."

5.—"Railroad Politics and Their Effect on Popular Government."

6.—"Are Railroad Commissioners Sufficient Protection to the People's Interest, or Must the People Own the Roads Themselves?"

These articles will deal with the truth and present facts in the most forcible way. They will help the reader to understand why the business of Boston has not increased as fast as all political economists think it should.

Whose Little Aristocrats Are These?

Two Girl Babies Deserted

MILFORD, March 30.—A tiny bundle of apparent aristocracy, the police of this place are holding a baby girl but a few weeks old, while a search is being made for the man whose footsteps were traced about the door of Amasa G. Taft, of Upton road, on Wednesday morning, when Mr. Taft found the cooing bundle on the front step of his house.

That the child is of well-to-do parentage Police Chief H. C. Small is convinced. The clothing in which the mite of humanity was dressed supports the theory of Chief Small, as every garment on the baby was of the finest and softest linen, edged with costly lace.

The heartbroken cries of a baby ascending from the hall below attracted the attention of Mrs. Robert Petter of No. 33 Travers street last evening, and going down stairs she found a two-weeks' old girl curled up on the floor.

A handsome white baby blanket had been spread upon the hall floor and upon this the infant lay. The little one was dressed with extreme care in clothing of fine texture. She has dark blue eyes.

The baby was taken to the Chardon street home.

ORIGINATOR OF WIRE TAPPING CONVICTED

NEW YORK, March 30.—William H. McNutt, known to the police of the country as the originator of the wire-tapping game, and who figured, it is said, in many secret million-dollar mining stock transactions, was convicted yesterday of grand larceny in the first degree before Judge Foster.

McNutt was charged with obtaining $5,500 from John Wykatt, a saloon proprietor, of One Hundred and Twenty-seventh street and Lenox avenue, by selling him 10,000 shares of Central Idaho Gold Mining Company stock.

BURGLAR CALLS IN POLICE; ARRESTED

George A. Gill, a chauffeur, of Malden, who locked himself up in W. W. Cough's grocery store at Dedham and telephoned for the police to come and arrest him—which they did—was arraigned in the District Court in that place to-day and held for the Grand Jury on the charge of breaking and entering.

PRETTY RICH WIDOW ROBBED, TRIES SUICIDE

Loses $150,000 Fortune to Friend She Trusted to Settle Husband's Estate.

PUTS BULLET OVER HEART

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, March 30.—Robbed, as she alleges, of bonds and real estate worth $150,000 by a Brooklyn clothing manufacturer whom she trusted to settle her affairs, Mrs. H. Bay, the handsome young widow of a rich New Orleans sugar broker, lies dangerously ill over the heart at the Hotel Alabama, No. 15 West Seventieth street. She was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital a prisoner, charged with attempted suicide. The surgeons there said she would die.

The name of the man whom she charged with robbing her was confided by Mrs. Kay several days ago to her physician, Dr. F. E. Bush of No. 45 Clarton street, who had been treating her for nervousness and depression.

Mrs. Kay told Dr. Bush that she had given the money, bonds and jewelry to the clothing manufacturer without requiring a receipt. When she afterwards demanded them he refused to hand them over, she said. Having no receipt, she was helpless.

On Saturday, in the absence of Mrs. Kay, found a note whose ragged folds showed it had been carried in her corsage. It was on stationery of the St. Charles Hotel, New Orleans, without date. It read:

"My darling dear: I am leaving, but against my wishes. If you love me please wait until my return. I simply cannot give you up. Yours sincerely. "BILL."

HEARST AVOWS HE IS NOT A CANDIDATE

Does Not Seek Presidential Nomination, but Hopes for Progressive Democracy.

WILL FIGHT FOR THE CAUSE

By Boston American Leased Wire.

CHICAGO, March 30.—The Record-Herald yesterday printed the following interview with William Randolph Hearst:

"I am in no sense a candidate."

With these words, William Randolph Hearst, who arrived in Chicago Tuesday, met an inquiry concerning Presidential timber and issues for the campaign of 1908. Although at first unwilling to comment upon the topic as being an event too far in the future, he at length denied any designs upon the Democratic nomination.

Mr. Hearst followed up this declaration in the following manner:

"In the last campaign there was an obvious disposition on the part of—what shall I call them—of the corporation Democrats to secure control of the party, and they put up a reactionary candidate. But I do not think that this reactionary, this Republican element in Democracy, has any chance of controlling the party in the future. It was severely rebuked in the last presidential election; it has been rebuked whenever it showed its head—or its hands—since that time.

"I think that the Democratic party is in a progressive frame of mind, and that it is disposed to take more or less radical and sincere steps toward the remedy of public evils. I imagine, however, that there will be no lack of candidates for the great nomination, and—this with a smile that developed into a laugh"—I will not be dragged from my—privacy—to take part in the competition.

"But I wish to make it clear that I am not renouncing politics. I am very much interested in this progressive democracy of which I speak, and I shall continue to use my papers and whatever influence I possess in its behalf. I shall do so all the more enthusiastically because we have been encouraged with big successes."

CUT OFF BY SIRE FOR TAKING PRETTY SERVANT AS BRIDE, NOW FIGHTS WILL

Revere Man Wants Share of $100,000 Left to Brothers by Father.

Declares He Helped in Rearing Fortune and Charges Undue Influence.

Fighting for his share of property, valued by the town authorities at more than $100,000, which he asserts has been denied him because fifteen long years ago he married a beautiful servant girl of a different faith, George H. Janvrin of No. 26 Hill side avenue, Revere, has protested against the recently filed will of his father, William S., and a hearing is given him to-day in the Probate Court.

Through his attorney, Johnson W. Ramsey of No. 42 Court street, Mr. Janvrin contends that undue influence was brought to bear upon his father and that the latter was induced to forget him in his will, although the relations between father and son had always been most harmonious. The defendants of the will are the other four sons, Samuel P., William F., Frank T. and Walter A.

Everybody in Revere knows the Janvrin family. For nearly a century it has been very prominent and influential in the social, political and financial life of the town.

The most prominent of all its members was William S. Janvrin, who recently died at the advanced age of seventy-three. He had five sons. George being his father's right hand man.

Fell in Love With Girl.

Until 1889 everything ran smoothly. That year there came from Cape Breton a lovely young girl, Florence Campbell, who hired out with a neighbor of the Janvrins. She was pretty, bright and talented. While she was doing housework, she studied evenings, trying in every way to improve her condition. In time she became very proficient in music, and began giving lessons to the children of the town. George Janvrin had early been attracted by her beauty of face and character, and in two years announced his intention of wedding her. His father objected and so did the remainder of the family. They said that she was a servant and that she was a Catholic. They could never give their consent to such a marriage.

In spite of all that his family said, George wedded the fair servant girl. For a while there was a coldness between father and son, but upon the birth of a little girl, the old man seemed to become reconciled. The child was named Martha, after her grandmother, and soon grew to be exceedingly fair and winsome.

All this time George and his father were engaged in building and renting houses. Some years ago the old man's wife died and from that time he seemed to fail. Shortly after this, his son Samuel was appointed his guardian and looked after the estate. The old man died a few months ago, and when his will was read, it was found that George had been left out.

Knows No Good Reason.

Mrs. George H. Janvrin, who is now but thirty-three years old, is a charming woman. To a reporter for the BOSTON AMERICAN she said:

"We had been the best of friends for the sixteen years of my married life. We know of no sound reason for cutting off my husband. Many witnesses will appear to testify to the harmonious relations of these years. Why the question of servant girl and religion should enter in the last twelve months of my father-in-law's life is beyond my discernment. Ask anywhere in Revere and you will find that my husband is one of the best of men and that I have a multitude of good friends."

MRS. GEORGE H. JANVRIN.

Pretty servant girl whose marriage to Revere man is said to have led father to cut son off in $100,000 estate left to brothers, and for which the husband is now fighting.

WOMAN TELLS HOW SHE STOLE BACK DAUGHTER

Mrs. Bowers Traced Little One to Chicago, Where Husband Had Taken Her.

WILL FIGHT TO KEEP HER

Special to Boston American.

WORCESTER, March 30.—Mrs. Nellie M. Bowers of Leicester to-day told how she recovered possession of her five-year-old daughter Hazel, whom her divorced husband, Everett W. Bowers, took with him to Chicago two years ago. It was a story of a long night of peril, ending when the little one left the house to go to a candy store, where the mother took her in her bosom.

Mrs. Bowers, happy in the success of her mission, said to-day: "My waif of two years for possession of my darling is ended. You don't know how happy I am. When the court gave me my divorce decree and my former husband took Hazel away with him I was frantic. I searched everywhere, but to no avail. My money was gone and I had to go to work in a mill at North Rutland, where I saved every cent with the purpose of using it to restore my child to me. I spent it in retaining for the police to send out, and hoped against hope until at last word came from the police at Chicago that my little one was there, in a tenement house, where her father had gone to live. At the first possible moment I started with my cousin, Walter Sargent, for Chicago.

"My cousin rented apartments for me directly under the rooms in which my little one was living, and when night came I entered the building.

"Morning came at last, but it seemed as if the hours would never wear away until it was time for Hazel to go out. At last I heard her footsteps on the stairs and I saw her go out to a candy store.

"I ran from the house and at the door of the store pressed Hazel to my bosom. She had not forgotten me in all those two long years.

"We left Chicago at once and came direct to Worcester. If my husband makes any effort to take my child from me I will fight him in the courts."

GIRL TRIES SUICIDE AFTER A QUARREL

LYNN, March 30.—After a quarrel with a man, according to the police, Eva Henderson, a strikingly handsome blonde twenty years old, drank a bottle of creosine early to-day in a lodging house, but is now believed to be out of danger.

Miss Henderson lives at No. 213 Burrill street, Swampscott, with an uncle, Hazen W. Tyler, a constable. She spent last night here at No. 265 Union street. It is said that she drank the poison in a fit of despondency.

She says she has money enough to last her but a few days. I have sent out letters to friends in an effort to raise a subscription for her benefit.

Among the subscriptions that have already reached Mr. Smithson are the following: Lee Shubert, $100; Paulin Edwardes, $50; Nixon & Zimmerman, $100; Blanche Ring, $10; Frank Smithson, $25; William Hale, $5; Samuel Rumsey, $5; Bertram Wallis, $5, and Helen Marvin, $5.

WOMEN WORK ON APPEAL TO SAVE TUCKER

Mass Meeting by Spiritualist Leader Called for Sunday Afternoon.

WILL CIRCULATE PETITIONS

A mass meeting of women for the purpose of obtaining signatures for a petition to Governor Guild asking for the commutation of Charles L. Tucker's sentence will be held Sunday in Temperance Hall, 90 Washington street, under the direction of Mrs. M. Adelle Wilkinson.

Mrs. Wilkinson has been an earnest worker for the past dozen years for the abolition of the death penalty, but never more so than now, as she believes the "inhumanity of man" is responsible for the suffering of Mr. and Mrs. Tucker, parents of the boy condemned to death. Mrs. Wilkinson said at her home to-day:

"I have already sent one petition of a hundred names to Mrs. Elizabeth Heidlmann of North Reading, who is obtaining more names.

"It will be a free thought meeting, the first of its kind conducted by women in Boston. We wish to show that Spiritualists are more humane than many of the so-called Christians.

"I read very carefully what Rev. Mr. Crane of the People Temple had to say on the death penalty and would say that if a man who, to-day, advances such ideas is not what his position would show him to be—a Christian, and by Christian I mean a true follower of Christ's teachings.

"We want to save this young man's life and prevent a legal murder—a murder of which we, the public are partly responsible. I shudder when I think that I, as a part of the people in a country whose government "is to the people and for the people" am as much to blame as the men who condemned him to death. The least I can do is to register a protest against a law which yesterday was all right and to-day is all wrong."

LABOR CHIEFS CONFER ON THE OVERTIME BILL

Legislators Meet Federation Leaders to Decide on Policy to Be Pursued.

The leaders of the fight which has been waged since 1895 in behalf of the Overtime Bill, which this year was killed in the Senate through the treachery of supposed friends of labor, have been in conference to-day on the proposal that so much of the Overtime Bill as related to minors be made a part of the draft of the child labor bill, which will be discussed in the Senate next Tuesday. The conference was at Andrews Hall, Wells Memorial building. Engaged in the discussion were Representative Ross, of New Bedford, the father of the Overtime Bill; Senator Mahoney, of Hampton, Representatives Parks and Willard, of Fall River, and E. Gerry Brown, of Boston. They met with the executive and legislative committees of the Massachusetts branch of the American Federation of Labor.

The Federation committees consist of the following: Executive, Francis J. Clarke of Brockton, president; D. D. Driscoll of Boston, secretary-treasurer; Charles H. Winslow of Fitchburg, Edward Cohen of Lynn, Philip L. Sayed of Boston, Cornelius J. Carmody, of Worcester, Thomas J. Durnin, of Holyoke; legislative, Frank K. Foster of Boston, chairman; Fred J. Kneeland of Boston, secretary; Albert Hibbert of Fall River, Michael Coultas of Cambridge, Daniel F. Chelesey of Haverhill.

Members of the Legislature who favored the bill that was killed and of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor who have been seen by reporters of the BOSTON AMERICAN are opposed to any compromise measure.

The labor men want both women and children prevented from working at night in factories, whereas the suggestion made in some quarters is that they attempt to get legislation that will affect only to children.

Senator Daniel D. Mahoney, who has charge of the child labor bill, said that it would be unwise to tack on the proposed rider from the overtime bill to his bill.

John Golden, president of the Textile Workers of America, said:

"We are unalterably opposed to any amendments to the overtime bill. Our working women must also be protected. We want no political sop."

MINERS ENTOMBED 20 DAYS TAKEN OUT ALIVE

REMARKABLE RESCUE OF 14 MEN CUT OFF BY THE COURRIERES HORROR.

LENS, France, March 30.—The most remarkable rescue in mining history was made to-day, when fourteen men, entombed for twenty days in the Courrieres mine as a result of the disaster which cost 1,200 lives, were taken out by a searching party in Shaft No. 2. Subsisting on wheat and oats kept to feed the mules, their supply was nearly gone, and the men could have lived but a few hours longer. With one exception, however, they are in fair physical condition.

While the searching party was at work miners were heard. The explorers called out, and there were answers to their shouts. They began digging hurriedly in the direction from which the answers came and finally dug out fourteen miners. They were quickly taken back to the foot of the shaft and lifted to the ground above.

When they were cut off from escape by the explosion and fire, which followed, the miners took refuge in a stable used for the mules employed in the mine. They had subsisted for days on the lunches of their dead comrades, which had been taken down on the day of the disaster. When this food had been exhausted they resorted to eating wheat and oats, which were kept in the stable for the mules. Water was also found and in this manner the entombed miners managed to sustain their lives.

One of the rescued miners was a boy of 14, who had endured the hardships to which all had been subjected with all the courage manifested by his seniors.

The Courrieres horror was one of the worst disasters recorded in the history of mining. It occurred early in the morning of March 10, shortly after the men had been lowered into the shafts for work. An explosion of fire damp occurred, and within a few moments practically the whole mine was ablaze. The great majority of the 1800 miners employed in the mine were cut off from escape and lost their lives.

It was practically impossible to do anything toward rescuing the entombed miners as the gases which poured from every opening drove back the rescuers. Hope was abandoned for all the lost men within two days, as it was not believed possible for anyone to have remained alive in the pits.

LEAVE WIFE SLAYER TO FATE IN DEATH CHAIR

SCHIDLOFSKI'S COUNSEL SAY FURTHER EFFORT TO SAVE PRISONER USELESS.

John Schidlofski, wife murderer, must not expiate his brutal crime in the death chair at Charlestown.

Counsel for the man recently convicted are agreed on the futility of further effort to save the prisoner from execution. To-day, the time for filing exceptions taken expires, but will not be argued. If it Winslow and Phillip H. Sullivan, the convicted man's counsel, say the exceptions are wholly on law points and it is useless to argue them.

The attorneys for the condemned man state that he convicted himself, as he did not tell the same story in court that he told the doctors when they first examined him. Had he done this transitory frenzy might have been established.

Mr. Winslow gives out the following statement of his position to the AMERICAN:

Schidlofski told the physicians during the examination that he distinctly remembered what he did after waking up and finding himself half way down the hill, but when he took the stand he testified that he did not remember anything that took place until after he had arrived at Chicago.

"We have done our best for him. I presume that the District Attorney will move for sentence within a few days."

SUES ROGERS FOR 50 MILLION

A preliminary hearing will soon be held in the suit of Cadwallader P. Raymond of Somerville to recover $50,000,000 from Henry H. Rogers of the Standard Oil Company, claimed by the plaintiff to be due him as one of the firm of Charles Pratt & Co. for the use of a secret process said to have been given the Standard Oil Company in 1874.

EATEN OUT OF HOUSE AND HOME

How a Confirmed Dyspeptic Developed an Appetite Like a Corn-husker's and Cleaned Out Everything in Sight.

The wife of a leading druggist of Des Moines tells how her brother was changed from a dyspeptic without appetite to a prodigious eater.

"My brother, who is a lawyer in Chicago, came to visit me and I hardly knew him on his arrival he was so thin and run down. I had not seen him for years and was much alarmed at his appearance. He told me not to worry as he had been in this condition for years as a result of chronic dyspepsia. I asked him what he had done for it, and he said he had done everything—taken every remedy he had ever heard of and consulted doctors without number, none of them helped him. I asked him if he ever took Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and he said he hadn't and what was more he wouldn't. He had sworn off taking medicine of any kind.

"I had my husband bring home a box from the store and I actually made him take one of two of the tablets after he had eaten. They made him feel so much better that he offered no further objection. He had not taken the one box before he was greatly improved and three or four boxes cured him of dyspepsia and gave him a wonderful appetite. He came near eating us out of house and home. My but it did me good to see him eat. He gained fifteen pounds before he returned home, and he writes me that he has not been troubled with dyspepsia since."

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets actually do the work assigned to them. They renew weak and overburdened stomachs of their work of digestive action. Their component parts are identical with those of the digestive fluids and secretions of the stomach, and they simply take up the grind and carry on the work just the same as a good, strong, healthy stomach would do it.

On this account Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are perfectly natural in their action and effects. They do not cause any unnatural or violent disturbance in the stomach or bowels. They themselves digest the food and supply the system with all the nourishment contained in what is eaten and carry out Nature's plans for the sustenance and maintenance of the body.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, by thus relieving the stomach of its work, enable it to recuperate and regain its normal health and strength. Nature repairs the worn and wasted tissues just as she heals and knits the bone of a broken limb, which is of course not used during the process of repair.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are for sale by all druggists at 50 cents a box. One box will frequently effect a perfect cure.

Invite the Public of Boston and New England

TO THEIR

New Colonnaded Window Show

WE make the finest exposition that has ever been attempted in this country for the display of Men's, Youths', Ladies', Misses', Children's and Infants' Garments. The background of these rectangularly elaborated new windows for the display of Spring Goods is formed with a succession of fluted Roman Doric columns with heavy carved capitals, supporting a moulded frieze or cornice from which springs a curved ceiling. The finish is the richest San Domingo mahogany.

The public are cordially invited to view this most unique window display, with its exposition of new goods for Spring and Summer, perhaps unexcelled anywhere. We call attention, also, to our New and Elegant Flemish Room which has been in process of construction throughout the Winter for the exclusive display of Youths' and Boys' Clothing. We hold ourselves in readiness to show especial attention to those who may feel pleased to favor us with a call, whether intending to purchase or not.

Incidentally we shall present to each visitor a mezzo-tint imprint of Peter Faneuil, who presented Faneuil Hall, the Cradle of Liberty, to Boston, and who resided during Colonial Days on the site now occupied by our building.

DISFIGURED WITH ECZEMA

Brushed Scales from Face Like Powder—Under Physicians Six Months But Grew Worse—Some Said Face Would Be Marked for Life—Now Without a Blemish.

CUTICURA REMEDIES WORK WONDERS.

"As I was a sufferer with eczema I write to tell you what a great friend I found in Cuticura Remedies. In six months I had tried three doctors, but did not get any better. It was on my body and on my feet so thick that I could hardly put a pin on me without touching eczema. My face was covered, my eyebrows came out, and then it got in my eye. I then went to another doctor. He asked me what I was taking for it, and I told him Cuticura. He said that was a very good thing, but that he thought that my face would be marked for life. But Cuticura did its work and my face is now just as clear as it ever was.

"My brother-in-law told me about the wonderful Cuticura remedies. I took his advice and got the Ointment, Soap, and Resolvent. I washed with the Cuticura Soap and then applied the Ointment, and took Cuticura Resolvent as directed. In a short time my face began to get better, and when I had taken one bottle of Resolvent I could brush the scales off my face like a powder. When I had taken four bottles my face was as clear as ever.

"I tell all my friends about my remarkable cure. I feel so thankful I want everybody far and wide to know what Cuticura can do. It is a sure cure for eczema. (signed) Mrs. Emma White, 641 Cherrier Place, Camden, N. J., April 25, 1905."

and sacrificed—rather a small lot of Pianos this week, but the instruments are particularly High Grade—there are a few uprights with hand carved rosewood and mahogany cases that will go for a price that would not pay for the cost of carving, also some beautiful burl walnut cases and others in selected rich ornamental woods. Not a plain ordinary looking piano in the lot. Prices this week will run about the same as last.—Every piano in perfect condition.
Some swell bargains in new and slightly used Uprights next week of the following makes: Wellington, Chicago—Sommer, Omaha, Neb.—Whitney, Chicago—Smith & Barnes, Chicago—Rogers Bros., Chicago—Marshall & Wendell, New York—Kranich & Bach, New York—Kingsbury, Chicago—Woodbury, Leominster—Geo. Steck, New York—Jacob Bros., New York. People familiar with these makes will know that they are excellent pianos in every respect. They are sold at a less price than New England makes only because Boston is not acquainted with their true worth.
SPECIAL NOTICE TO PIANO DEALERS!
No pianos will be sold to dealers or makers for a less price than marked for public sale. Each piano is marked a selling price to cover expenses, and in no case can a maker or dealer get a lower price than an individual. This applies to a dealer's or manufacturer's own make or any other make.
Liberal terms to responsible parties. Get in early and select best bargains. Pianos shipped free to all parts of the United States.
Write to-day for full bargain list. We have dozens of fine Pianos not in the above list, left over from special sales, etc. Some Pianos for beach or country houses almost given away.

PIANO SLAUGHTER
STORAGE SALE
A great many people are ignorant of the fact that the best possible opportunity to buy a piano at the lowest possible price is to get one at the Storage Sale. Sometimes the finest pianos that are made go almost for a song. Some pianos of the best makes that have been used only slightly, and at that in the best of homes, are sold for prices that seem impossibly low. New and second hand pianos are sold regardless of price.
Pianos go for prices much lower than an auction would bring. There is no one to bid at a piano storage sale, the price is simply put on, first come, first served, and the careful, economical man or woman who wants to buy a piano economically, in fact more than economically, will watch the storage sales carefully.
The gilded piano stores with their costly appointments, their high salaried sales agents, their sellers' commissions, etc., are no place for the economical piano buyer to go. Take the trouble to look around a little, go up where the rents are not so high and buy your piano right.
Several nice upright pianos which must be sold at a sacrifice; 2 nice uprights, Chickering and Vose, $40 and $50; nearly new mahogany uprights, 3 pedals, latest style, at ½ Boston prices; reason why, no large rents, big salaries or commissions to be paid; no fancy floors; our expenses about $5 a day; Boston warerooms' expense $300 to $500 daily; our terms the most liberal; free carting, free tuning and 3 months' lessons with each piano; why not see us at once and thus save the agents' enormous profits? SHAWMUT PIANO CO., 720A Shawmut av., Roxbury, Mass.; open till 9 P. M.

O'Rourke Offers Good Purse so

FITZ MAY BOX RUHLIN

NEW YORK, March 30.—One moment, Bob Fitzsimmons, before you take that train to-day for Toledo!

Gus Ruhlin wants to fight you. Gus and Billy Madden, his manager, have been hustling for days in the hope of getting on a match with Fitz, and yesterday they clinched it with Tom O'Rourke, so far as the Tuxedo Athletic Club is concerned.

"I'm anxious to have the challenge published before Fitz goes West," said Gus Ruhlin, "because I wouldn't have him think I'm bothering him while he's out on the road.

"But here's the situation. Fitz is just as good to-day as he ever was. If he hadn't been worrying over things he would have made a very different fight with Philadelphia Jack O'Brien. The people who follow fights know that, and after the battle he and I put up in Madison Square Garden just before the end of the Horton law. I know that thousands of New Yorkers will go down to Essington to see us fight. I want to meet Fitz for twenty rounds before the Tuxedo Athletic Club, and I feel sure that he will be just as willing to fight as I am.

"I know Fitz has been keeping himself in good shape, and I have been doing a lot of work lately. You know I never dissipate. I am going to fight next Wednesday evening at Billy Elmer's club in the gymnasium in West Forty-second street. I shall meet Sailor Burke, Jim Jeffords or Jim Savage—whichever is the best man Elmer can find.

"I want to get a match with Fitz, because I think he is the toughest man I ever fought. Tom O'Rourke says he can guarantee us a good purse. The Tuxedo Athletic Club brought off a ten-round bout and a twenty-round bo... last night, so we are safe from any interference by the authorities. All I want is to know that Fitz is willing and I shall begin to train at once. I'm not going to bother him about the date. He can fix it for any time he likes. All I want is a fight.

There can be no doubt that a battle between Fitz and Gus Ruhlin would draw an enthusiastic gallery. Their contest in the Garden was one of the fiercest fights ever seen in New York. Ruhlin, although knocked out three times, has since improved and although Fitzsimmons collapsed after the thirteenth round of his recent fight with Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, there is every reason to believe that worry and mental strain had as much todowithhim as feat as the hardships of the battle itself.

IN GAME WITH JACKSONVILLE TEAM TO-DAY,

"LITTLE CY" TO PITCH

Special to the Boston American.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 30.—Fred Tenney's Boston National team is scheduled to play another game with the Jacksonville nine to-day.

"Little Cy" Young, who hasn't had much of a show to demonstrate his prowess to the Southerners as yet, may twirl the whole game, as he is in excellent form, and anxious to have a good long workout.

If the Bostons should win to-day it will be the fourth straight for them.

Negotiations are under way for Boston to play the local team to-morrow and Sunday. If the Bostons play on Sunday it will mean a big bunch of money for them, as this is a great city for Sunday ball, as proven by the Sunday exhibition between the Boston Americans and the Reds last season, which the latter won.

The Hubites won yesterday's game, 4 to 0. Lindaman and Pfeffer pitched for the visitors, both doing fairly well. The Tennessties fielded perfectly. The feature of the game was the all-round good work of Bridwell, Bates and Goode. The score:

BIG STORM OF COUPONS FOR FREE PASSES

Batches of fifty, seventy-five, a single, a dozen and every conceivable number is the way the coupons are coming in every mail, addressed to the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN Baseball Contest Editor. The fans are no longer holding off until the last minute. As correct an opinion can be formed to-day as later of either the National or American team.

It seems impossible that seventy-five different ways of making up the two teams could be thought out, but it is possible, and goes to show that some fans are mixing their teams with brains.

The snow is disappearing, and the smell of green grass in the air is enough to make any one sniff at the chance to get a season ticket book at either the American or National League grounds by simply filling out and sending in a coupon with your suggestion as to how the teams will figure in their first games on April 12 and 14.

There are many changes on local teams each day, and there will continue to be, according to the captain-managers of both nines. "You won't see two batting orders alike for a month yet," said Jimmy Collins to the staff correspondent who approached him on the subject to find out when it would be best to close the coupon box. "I won't be satisfied until I have tried every mix-up on the board. If I sent in my own suggestion now, there are a hundred changes in one that it wouldn't be correct.

With Tenney's team it is the same. Send in your coupons now. There is but one week and a few days left.

CRACK COLLEGE GYMNASTS TO MEET TO-NIGHT

NEW YORK, March 30.—Athletes in the big Eastern colleges are eagerly anticipating the intercollegiate gymnastic meet to be held at Columbia University this evening.

The colleges which will have representation at the meet are Yale, Harvard, Columbia, Princeton, University of Pennsylvania, New York University, Rutgers and Haverford. The meet this year gives promise of being closely contested, as Harvard, Yale and New York University have especially strong teams.

Harvard succeeded in defeating Columbia and University of Pennsylvania this month by fair sized scores at Cambridge.

The Yale team has been weakened by the loss of E. C. Butler, their captain. Owing to conditions Butler will be unable to enter. He is a star man on the horizontal bar and would probably have won that event.

New York University defeated University of Pennsylvania and Princeton in two dual meets in New York University gymnasium the best club's court.

BOSTON PAIR WON DOUBLES

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, March 30.—George R. Fearing and Hugh D. Scott of Boston won the racquet doubles championship from L. Waterbury and Charles E. Sands of this city at the New York Racquet and Tennis Club. This will make the second consecutive time that the Hub team has won the honors.

Next week the championship singles court tennis tourney will be decided on

In Game at Montgomery To-day

CY YOUNG WILL PITCH

By the Boston American Staff Correspondent With the Team.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 30.—Cy Young, who has been in charge of the small squad of players that has been in this city for two days now, went down to the station to-day to welcome Manager Jimmy Collins and his crew, who has been playing an engagement at Nashville. Although the newcomers were not in a very happy frame of mind, owing to an all-night session in the sleepers, it did not take them long to get into jovial spirits per the encouraging reports of the "grand old man."

Collins is simply disgusted with the way the weather man has been treating his men since they have been in the South. They have been served with by far more rain than sunshine.

The Bostons will play here to-day and to-morrow. Manager Durell, who took charge of the local team, succeeding Tom O'Brien, at Worcester last year, and winning 20 out of 21 games, thereby enabling his club to finish in second place in the Southern Association, is anxious for Collins to stay in this city for the first three days next week instead of passing on to New Orleans. As Collins has all arrangements made with New Orleans it is unlikely that he will change his plans.

Moreover, the diamond is a skin affair, and major league baseball clubs certainly do hate to play on such fields.

Young and Dinneen Slated.

Cy Young and Bill Dinneen will do the pitching for the Bostons to-day, if Manager Collins carries out his present intentions.

There are several players well known to the Hub with the Montgomery team. John Malarkey and Roy Hale, erstwhile pitchers of the Boston Nationals, are with the local aggregation. Red Ehret, the famous old Louisville pitcher, who umpired in the Southern Association last season, is trying for a pitching berth on the Montgomerys.

Hobe Perrin, who twisted his ankle in the game with the Nashvilles Wednesday, says that he will be able to get back into the game early next week. During his absence his position will be occupied by Graham, the utility man.

Cy Young has been putting his charges through all kinds of sprouts since Jimmy Collins has been absent in Nashville with the main body of the team. Both yesterday morning and afternoon the men were put through stiff practice, and when they had finished their work for the day, all agreed that the Dayton man is a glutton for work.

Henry Marchi was sent to the outfield to chase flies. He is very weak on balls over his head, and the rest of the players missed his ludicrous efforts.

Dinneen Sweated Like a Bull.

The pitchers all got hard licks at pitching. Dinneen was sweating like a bull when he got through his work.

"Big" Dinneen says that he is in as fine form as ever before in his pitching career, and predicts that he will make good with ease this season. Dinneen asserts that lack of proper condition was responsible for his mediocre work last season.

There was no game at Nashville for the Bostons yesterday owing to a heavy rain.

Jimmy Collins admits that his men are in very poor shape. This is due to the inclement weather that has been following them up to date. Most of the players are overweight because they haven't been able to get enough work to decrease their flesh. Lounging about a hotel all day watching the rain pelt against the window pane is not the best thing in the world for the reduction of waist lines.

"Will" Dolahanty, the youngest member of the Dolahanty family, is playing short for Montgomery. He says that his brother is putting up great practice exhibitions for the Reds.

Frank Bedford, the Somerville pitcher suspended by the Birmingham team, is after a berth with some South Atlantic League club.

President Amerine, of the Montgom ery team, is after "Pop" Rising. He has watched the latter practice, and is rath er struck with his ability.

RICE AND KEYES DRAW.

NEW YORK, March 30.—Austin Rice faced Bert Keyes of Philadelphia in the windup at the Whirlwind Athletic Club. Keyes swung viciously, but missed more times than he landed. Rice was careful and made a draw of it.

ABE ATTELL MEETS NEIL NEXT MONTH

By Boston American Leased Wire.

LOS ANGELES, March 30.—Frankie Neil and Abe Attell will fight for the featherweight championship at Ivan Carey's Pacific A. C. April 20. The men will fight at 122 pounds, ringside, the featherweight limit. Besides the title involved, the men will also contest for a championship diamond belt, valued between $500 and $1,000.

This will be the first belt fight since the Richard K. Fox diamond belt. Neil has been regarded as a bantam, and is really leaving his class to meet Attell. It was Neil who was responsible for the death of Harry Tenney. This will be Neil's first engagement since the tragic bout at Frisco.

BALDWIN HAS THE WALLOP

There is the greatest possible curiosity shown on all sides regarding the appearance of Matty Baldwin at the Lincoln club, Chelsea, next Monday.

The Bunker Hill has been winning so consistently from everyone he has faced in New York that he has been forced to the front by good judges over there, who regard him as a second Kid Lavigne in style, aiming and ring generalship.

It is surprising to note the people who are loud in their opinion that Baldwin will score a clean knockout over Kid Goodman.

The preliminary between Battling El Grand and New Bedford and Young Penny should be red hot, and the heavyweight bout between Williams of Gloucester and Callahan of Peabody will decide the best weight championship of Essex County.

CONNOLLYS TO JUMP ABROAD

NEW YORK, March 30.—It has been announced by the Olympic selection committee that E. B. Parsons, of Yale, will compete in four, and possibly five, Lodz metre runs at Athens. Other men added to the team, which will sail about next Tuesday, are: Lawrence Robertson, Irish A. C., sprinter and jumper; Paul H. Pilgrim, New York A. C., runner; Francis E. and James B. Connolly, of the Shamrock Rowing Club, Boston, jumpers, and Thomas F. Cahill, of the same organization.

LAST FOOTBALL MEET TONIGHT

Head Coach W. T. Reid, Jr., of Harvard, left for New York to-day to be present at the meeting of the Football Rules Committee, which is to be held to-night at the Murray Hill Hotel. At the meeting to-night the draft of the new rules which has been drawn up by Walter Camp and W. T. Reid will be passed on and the final revised rules given out.

CRICKET WORK TO-DAY.

Cricket practice for the Harvard cricket team will begin to-day in the old baseball cage in the Hemenway Gymnasium.

SCHOOLS START OUTDOOR WORK

A few of the school nines were able to get out on their own grounds yesterday, and consequently have been dried up in a surprisingly short time, making it quite possible that by the end of the week all of the school nines will have started outdoor work.

Warming up is a bit tedious at first and the tendency is about a few is strong. The fact that thousands of good ball players are laid off season on account of their strenuous actions during the first couple of days is enough to quell any tendency to speed. Lobbing the ball for a week or so is the only way to side-step that sad and sore arm.

Good batters are born, but the art of swatting the ball can be developed. The trouble with school teams in practice is that too little time is devoted to working in front of the pot. There would be fewer strikeouts on the score sheets if the batsmen allowed their men more time to develop the batting eye. When the pitched string is in the fold send the rest of the squad to the out field let them field and run, and hunt, until they lose all fear of standing up at the plate.

An abundance of new material reported to Captain J. A. Lynch, of Chelsea High, when he issued his first call several weeks ago. Indoor work has been going on with good results. Third and second base are the only infield positions to be filled by new men unless the four veterans—Captain Lynch, first base; R. N. Copeland, shortstop; Fred P. Hunter, pitcher, and G. Brown, catcher; are ousted by new men. Among the new material are: Messenger, Goldblatt, Mackell, Hargreaves, H. Brown, Hoffman, Burns, Lampee, Goldberg, Hoddin, Driscoll, Colone, Evans, Beebe, Martin, Dorne and Simon.

* * *

Wakefield High School, under Captain James Keefe, has a schedule of thirty games. The school should have a winning team for there is good material on hand and efficient coaches have been engaged. The first game will be next Wednesday with Arlington High.

* * *

Boston Latin School and English High were both out in the school yard for an hour during the afternoon. The usual first day work was run through. Coach Eugene Sullivan expects to make a cut in the B. L. S. squad before the beginning of the week is over.

HANEY DEFEATS JACK WILLIAMS

PHILADELPHIA, March 30.—Eddie Haney easily bested Jack Williams in the 9-footer at the Broadway Athletic Club. Although outweighed, Haney easily overcame this disadvantage by his cleverness. Eddie had the best of every round except the fifth, when Williams seemed to take on steam and pounded Haney pretty hard. Both men were tired at the finish.

It's Easy Enough to Manage a Husband If You Know How

By Arletta Burroughs

WHEN a woman has succeeded in managing her home so that her husband wants to stay in it I believe that she has found the way to "manage him." Exceptions to this, as in other things, only prove the rule.

Man loves to be managed, all his protests to the contrary notwithstanding, just as he likes the women who is foolish enough to let him run his wheels go around. The tactful woman will never allow him to suspect that he is not doing exactly as he wishes, in which case she generally has things fixed so that his way is hers.

I don't think for a minute that I wish to say anything derogatory to man. That is only one of his little weaknesses which make him so charming. Most men are just as susceptible to flattery as women, or perhaps I would better say appreciation, as flattery makes the giver and the one who accepts it both contemptible.

Show Appreciation

Little speeches or acts showing appreciation and care for each other are never lost. I cannot help having great sympathy for the man whose wife suddenly becomes so attentive. Her "Now, dearest, do let me fill your pipe. Can't I get your slippers?" deserves to be answered as it was in a case in point with, "For goodness sake, Maria, get the bonnet full at once and be done with it."

Woman's spasmodic solicitude does not work with a man with an ounce of brains. You know men do have some brains, and cannot be expected to be absolutely blind and deaf. It doesn't cost anything to keep a little kindly care on tap. Little things go further toward making or unmaking a happy home than big ones.

There is a vast difference between the little attentions a wife gives the husband she loves and the sham like service given and willingly accepted in many cases. You will never "manage" the man to whom you are a servant.

Find Happy Medium

Many a great, strong fellow is literally ruined as a companion by a little delicate woman who started out to "wait on" him when first married. This is the natural instinct of the loving, womanly woman, but she would better stifle it if she knows what is good for her.

The right kind of man loves his wife better for allowing him to keep a servant for her, and because she needs his strong hand to help her over the rough parts of her pathway. She, of course, if he is manfully able. The woman who strikes the happy medium between being a baby to be cuddled on absolutely and a servant to wait on her master is the woman who "manages" her husband.

Women usually brood in silence over real or fancied wrongs, or become scolds. An open, frank discussion of all subjects concerning both should be a feature of each day. Husband soon finds that intuitive knowledge of wife counts for much, and before either knows it she is necessary to him, although she does not dream of "managing" him, nor he of being "managed."

And now let me tell you that it is matrimonial suicide to disregard the old adage that "the way to a man's heart is through his stomach." Feed him if you want to keep him. And I don't blame men for being cranky when they have to eat the kind of meals that some women unblushingly place before them.

Wife, give your husband well-cooked food, keep his house clean and make it homelike as possible; always have some little attention to pay him that is especially his when he comes in, and I am not afraid to state that he will be willing to be managed.

Don't Nag

And now, to the most important point of all. I should like to write "Don't nag" in capital letters where it would be constantly in the sight of some women I know. This, by the way, applies to men as well. There is nothing which will so quickly disrupt a household as constant "nagging" on the part of one member.

Also, there are times in a woman's life when it is not only nothing but highly conducive to her future happiness, for her to be blind. Here is the woman who answered her husband's "I can't tell a lie, Maria. I've been to the office," with, "That's the difference between us. I can tell one when I hear it."

After all is said and done, this making home happy is a case for individuals. There can be no one rule for everybody. There must be brains and heart used as the exigencies of the case demand, and then all this building of home is worth naught unless superimposed upon a foundation of perfect love.

JACK HARKAWAY'S SON

CHAPTER XIX.

A Desperate Chance

Copyright, 1906, by American Journal-Examiner.

THIS is what happened.

As soon as Jack got well beneath the surface of the water he discovered that his suspicions were well founded.

An octopus had, indeed, seized the side of the ship with several of his tentacles, but it was not such an octopus as Jack expected to see.

The three or four arms that were attached to the ship's bottom by means of the giant suckers, with which they were provided, were each as thick as a man's body, and extended far down into the water, joining some place perhaps ten fathoms away.

Here was an octopus, indeed, a submarine monster that would wreck a battleship.

Jack believed that the best plan would be to frighten the creature by a little well-directed punishment, and, swinging in toward the ship's side he brought the end of the wire against one of the tentacles.

The result was unexpected.

Jack had s.?? believed that the current was turned on, but by some mistake in the engine room of the ship this had been done.

The minute he prodded the arm of the creature with the exposed end of the wire the suckers relaxed, the arm loosed its grasp, and through the dim light brown by his lamp Jack could see that the others had been also loosed, leaving the ship free.

He was now ready to return on board, for he had no desire further to investigate an gigantic creature, but just as he started to pull the signal rope he felt something slip about his body, and found himself closely tacked in a terrible grip.

Then he was carried off, but steadily out to sea.

He tried to reach one of the bombs, but his arms were fast bound to his sides by the tentacle that held him.

He still held the wire in his hand, but was unable to bring it to the animal's body side, try as he could.

The signal rope had been torn from his grasp.

There could be no help from that quarter.

And he remembered with horror that there was no other diving suit on board ship, and that even when his friends discovered by the inevitable breaking of the cord and follow him, as they surely would, they could see the dull eyes and the dark abyss below them.

It was then that he adopted as a last resort an expedient that might as easily result in his destruction as in his safety.

He managed to get a bomb free from his pocket, pressed the cap, and dropped it into the cavernous depths toward which he was being borne.

TO BE CONTINUED.

TO THE YOUNG READERS OF THE BOSTON AMERICAN.

LITTLE things count a whole lot. Remember that sometimes the most trifling occurrence will prove very important. If Kodia had not noticed the glittering tinfoil Harkaway would have found a grave in the Arctic Ocean. Keep your eye on the little things. Watch out that the little bad habit doesn't grow into a big one, and remember that the little lie may cause a big wrong.

COATS OF BLACK SILK LEAD IN SPRING STYLES

New Models Have Long-Shaped Skirts

STRIKING NEW COAT OF BLACK SILK

THE black silk coat is a striking feature of the Spring fashions—this model is particularly smart in its design.

It is made with rather a full blouse waist, gathered tightly into a deep girdle from which a shaped skirt falls almost to the knees.

The vest forms a little bolero of white silk or linen with wide collar, embroidered with large black polka dots.

The pot-shaped hat which looks so well with this costume is of fine chip straw with large puff crown of silk made in the lightest shade of biscuit color, with a wreath of deep cream roses.

It is especially pretty if the skirt and gloves are of the same shade and the shirtwaist is of cream lace.

The popularity of the black silk coat was firmly established last season. This year's creations are exquisitely pretty, and the woman who plans to add one of them to her wardrobe this Spring cannot go far amiss.

They are extremely useful as well as pretty and smart.

Advice to Anxious Sweethearts

By Beatrice Fairfax

ENOUGH TO PAY BOARD

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a man of twenty and am deeply in love with a young girl three years my junior. My parents are pretty well to do, so I pay them nothing, but I turn over to them two-thirds of my wages, which are but $8.50 a week, so that I can hardly take the girl out at all. Kindly advise me what to do, for I can't give her up.

W. H.

I THINK you should give your parents enough to pay your board, but that you should have the remainder of your salary for yourself. It would not be fair, you know, for a young man of your age to live at home and pay no board.

TRY THE OTHER WAY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have known a young man for about nine months, and during that time he has called about once a week. For the last four months we have been corresponding. His first letter and many letters thereafter were signed "Lovingly yours," and "Yours eternally." I signed all of mine, "Sincerely yours." His actions seem to indicate that he considers me more than a gentlemanly fellow, and my folks think he is very nice, but of course I am very fond of him, but of course I have to hide it, as I am not sure whether it is reciprocated or not.

Will you also tell me if it is proper for the lady to ask the gentleman to call, or should he suggest calling himself? When my friend is going home I always set the night for him to come again, and he has never disappointed me, but sometimes I feel as though I were forcing him when he never suggests coming without my asking.

DAISY.

YOU might try signing your letters no more than "Sincerely," and then if he silently feels very kindly toward you, and I do not think it would hurt to let him see that you reciprocate. About the calling I hardly know what to advise you. He has grown so used to your coming that if you were to stop it he probably would think you did not want him. If you like him well enough, I should think, to tell him that you would like him to take the initiative and call sometimes of his own accord. Perhaps he feels shy about it, however, and while he would be welcome unless he came on your invitation.

Do Women Count the Awful Cost of the Finery They Wear?

By Gertrude Barnum

(National Organizer of the Woman's Trade Union League.)

WHAT shall we wear? Did you ever know a girl who was not ready to talk about clothes? No wonder! Clothes have us by the throat; they bind us like slaves. They pull and pinch and torture and cripple us. They are the masters of our very souls. Why should we not talk about them?

Of course we wish to look as beautiful as possible, but why should it put us to such pains?

Show me the girl that does not admit the agonies of a woman's toilet.

What are we going to do about it? Perhaps we can learn of men. They are free; they have left off all the torture of the toilet.

But they have sacrificed beauty, you say?

Let us take the birds then; perhaps we can learn from them. Small, light, close-fitting cape, good for every-day wear; lovely, harmonious colors in their garb, with no stiff collars and no beltlines; substantial stuffs, that brave all weather and last through the season; short skirts and tidy feet and ankles. Yes, certainly we might learn from the birds.

There is another side to the clothes question. How are our clothes made?

Never was a savage more guilty than are we. We wear the very skins and scalps and teeth of our fellow workers for ornaments.

The makers of our clothes are staggering under heavy burdens. They are driven as with whips. No wonder we talk about clothes!

What can we do about it?

The workers tell us what to do. They ask us to call for the Union Label on everything we buy, and when we see their little sign—the label—we will know it is a guarantee of justice to the worker.

The women who make union shoes put the labels in them. The girls who make union gloves put the labels in them.

These union labels are the flags of our sister workers. We should rally to them.

They should be our flags, for the workers' battle is our battle!

How to Dress the Hair

THE new note of the moment in dressing the hair is the introduction of the curl, which displaces more or less prominently, but usually with no great amount of exaggeration, in all the fashionable schemes.

At the competition held recently in Paris the hairdressers who presented themselves to try for the prize were asked to exhibit two forms of hairdressing—a high one and a medium—proof positive of the fact that the tresses are not to be dressed on the nape of the neck this season.

One point that is most impressively insisted upon by the coiffeurs of to-day is the use of false hair.

Pads are not worn and frames are dispensed with, but as for the number of falls and curls that are added to even the most abundant tresses, they are unbelievably numerous.

After he has built up a dressing that looks complete, the hairdresser will place here and there with the utmost deftness a curl that looks as if it must be natural, or a roll of thick hair just where it is wanted.

That is why the girl whose hair is thick and short is far more to be envied than the one whose tresses are long and not particularly ample, because what nature has denied her in point of length can be easily supplied by bought hair.

Above the brow the hair is being dressed very high, with rather a top-heavy effect while at the sides it is a little puffed, but not exaggeratedly so.

At the back it is brushed straight up, and thus the casque-coiffe is quite dispensed with, and on the crown of the head it is arranged so that the shape of the head shall not be disguised, in moderately flat coils and little curls.

At the exhibition to which reference has just been made one girl demonstrated the power of the transformation. Her own dark hair was brushed up a la Chinoise, and, having been plaited, the braids were twisted tightly round the head and there pinned in place.

After that a blonde transformation that completely covered her own hair was placed upon her head, and, finally, a few extra formation linded, inasmuch as it completely metamorphosed her appearance.

Flowers are being used a great deal again as coiffure ornaments, and very charming a knot of quite small, pink roses, nestling in their leaves, looks tucked into the billowing tresses above the left temple, or a bunch of waxy pink and white camellias, with their glossy green foliage arranged in diadem form behind the high poupadour, so that from the front they are scarcely visible, though at the back, with the addition of a few little pretty curls, they look very new and smart.

Sadly enough, dyes are by no means a vanity that has passed.

The hairdressers report their very common use, and say that the tint that is most in request is chestnut, or chevrus de la reine, a bright brown with gilding and lights in it.

A season of triumph for the blonde is upon us most certainly, for all the pale dyes are in request.

But there is one prominent exception to this rule, and that is fluxen.

—When Pimples begin to peep out.
—When your stomach Gnaws and Burns.

That's the time to check coming Constipation, Indigestion and Dyspepsia.

That's the time to take a Cascaret.

* * *

One candy tablet night and morning, taken regularly for a short time, is warranted to cure the worst case of Constipation or Indigestion that walks the earth.

One tablet taken whenever you suspect you need it will insure you against 90 per cent of all other ills likely to attack you.

Because 90 per cent of these ills begin in the Bowels, or exist through poor Nutrition.

Cascarets don't purge, don't weaken, don't irritate, nor upset your stomach.

They don't act like "Physics" that flush out the Bowels with a waste of precious Digestive Juice needed for tomorrow's Bowel work.

No,—they act like Exercise, on the Bowels, instead.

They stimulate the Bowel Muscles to contract and propel the Food naturally past the little valves that mix Digestive Juices with Food.

They strengthen these Bowel-Muscles by exercising them.

This stronger action, producing greater nutrition from food, brings back to the Bowel-Muscles greater strength for self-operation.

The Bowel-Muscles can thus, in a short time, dispense with any Drug assistance whatever.

Cascarets are safe to take as often as you need them, while pleasant to eat as candy.

PART 5.

Copyright, 1906, by American Journal-Examiner.

In one of those bold bursts of eloquence for which the State's attorney was famous he tore the defence to shreds; ridiculed the story of the prisoner at the bar; denounced him with accusing finger and by word as liar and murderer.

"This man seeks," he told the jury, "to prejudice your minds by a cleverly conceived story. He seeks to make you believe that he is a burglar by a show of frankness, when as a matter of fact he is the murderer of that poor girl. Every act proves it. We don't even know there was another man, as he says. We are inclined to believe that there was not. The most rigid efforts of the police have failed to bring to light any other man concerned in this affair. This man is the murderer."

Judge Bell listened perfunctorily to the closing argument but his mind was elsewhere. He was remembering some of those struggles he himself had had; this boy did not look like a murderer. Yet, as the prosecuting attorney said, every fact seemed to indicate that he was. At last came the charge; it was fair, equitable as Judge Bell knew how to make it, and satisfactory to both sides.

Then the jury filed out. It was gone for an hour or more and when it filed back into the room the prisoner himself did not stare with greater interest than did Judge Bell.

"Gentlemen of the jury, have you agreed upon a verdict?" droned the clerk.

"We have," replied the foreman.

"What is the verdict?"

"Guilty of murder in the first degree."

There was the dead stillness which always follows such a verdict; then came a whispering and a chattering among the spectators. The State's attorney sank back with satisfaction on his face. He had won another case to the electric chair and all was well. The attorney for the defence had rather expected the verdict—it was not a surprise.

Suddenly the prisoner arose in his cage. His face was flaming with—certainly not fear, perhaps it was shame—and an officer of the court rushed towards him.

"I believed this trial would be a fair one," he began passionately. "I believed that that man there," and he pointed to Judge Bell, "was a man who would see that I got a fair trial. I am not guilty of murder; I am guilty of what I said. It isn't the fear of death that makes me say this; it is a demand for justice."

Such outbreaks occur frequently in courts of law; this attracted no more than the usual attention. It was the thing to say, but it meant nothing. The jury was far, all that remained was the passing of the death sentence.

The judge went to his home that afternoon; sentence having been postponed until a day or two later, and sat there for a long time in a brown study. Finally he strolled out for a walk in the clear, bracing air, and at last settled down comfortably at his club.

Soon after he left the house a woman appeared there and asked for him. She was not beyond her years, clad in shabby clothing, yet there remained traces of beauty in her face.

"I must see Judge Bell," she told the girl. "It is not here," the servant replied. "But I must see him," she went on. "It is a matter of life and death. Let me wait for him."

It may be midnight when he returns," the servant answered. "You may be able to see him early to-morrow morning."

And the woman went away. An hour or so later she appeared at the prison where the mysterious prisoner was held, and asked to see him.

"Who are you?" asked the jailer.

"His mother," she replied.

"What is your name?" the jailer demanded. He sought in this way to penetrate the veil of secrecy which the prisoner had drawn about himself.

"I had rather not give it—now," she replied. "I may later if you will let me see him."

The case was a strange one—strange in that it presented a sequence of events which were more than merely out of the ordinary. Believing that he would be able to establish the prisoner's identity, the jailer admitted the woman. There would be a scene at the meeting of the two, he reasoned, which would illuminate the affair to a certain extent.

With trembling steps, she followed the jailer to the cell where John Doe was confined. There was a bright light in the corridor, and when called the prisoner appeared at the bars. For an instant he looked into the face of the woman and then turned calmly to the jailer.

"Well, what is it?" he asked.

"My boy, my boy," she gasped. "Don't you know me?"

The jailer stared from one to the other in amazement.

"She said she was your mother," he explained to the prisoner.

"My mother?" the boy repeated. "Why, she must be mistaken. I don't recall that I ever saw her before."

"Oh, my boy, what are you saying?" the woman moaned.

She trembled, staggered a little and clutched at his hands, which gripped the bars of his cell tensely.

"I have never seen her before," the prisoner replied, steadily. "I don't like to be disturbed by everyone who comes here," he added, petulantly.

Died, in his mercy, has drawn a line beyond which human suffering cannot go. The woman reared, stared for a moment, then sank down as if dead on the floor of the corridor. The boy stood looking at her a moment, without a trace of emotion, then turned back and was lost in the shadows of his cell. The jailer and an assistant removed the woman to the office.

When Judge Bell entered his courtroom he found it crowded to the doors. Here were gigging girls who came to hear the horror of a man condemned to death; here were curious men about town; and the idle throng which always springs up out of the earth to add its gate to horrors. After a time there was a whispering and a craning of necks and a lane through the crowd was opened for a deputy.

Through this he prisoner, John Doe, appeared. He was quite calm, but a little white, and walked with steady step toward the cage. Once he glanced around the room apprehensively. He was trying to see if the woman who had come to his cell was present. He did not see her. After a greeting of fussing about and a due invocation of blessings upon the Commonwealth the prisoner was called.

"John Doe, have you anything to say why the sentence of death should not be pronounced upon you?" droned the judicial voice.

"I am innocent," was the clear reply.

It was the usual, the expected thing. Then came the sentence, in the beginning a sort of review of the case and the evidence, concluding with the fatal words:

"It is considered and ordered by the court that you, John Doe, the prisoner at the bar, suffer the punishment of death by the passage of a current of electricity through your body, within the week beginning the ninth day of March in this, the year of our Lord."

The prisoner's lips closed tightly. From another part of the room there came a shriek; the shrill treble of a woman. As if by magic a lane opened and the woman whom the prisoner so dreaded to face appeared, disheveled, before the court.

"Stand back," ordered a deputy, harshly.

"Let her come forward," commanded the Court.

She came and stood close to the rail, staring up at the eyes of the Judge. He stared back and as he stared some subtle change came over his face. He gazed sadly, and sank back in his chair. Seeing it the woman turned and faced the crowded court room.

"I demand justice for my boy," she exclaimed. "He is the son of his own father would give it to him. He has not. That boy in the cage there is my son; this man," and she pointed an accusing finger at Judge Bell, "is his father and my husband. Again I demand justice."

It's Fashionable to Laugh at the People

It Won't Be Quite So Fashionable Some Day—THE COAL TRUST MAY BE THE FIRST TO REALIZE THAT

READY FOR THE STRIKE

Mountain of coal to be sold at increased prices when the strike is on.

News dispatches announce that a coal strike is inevitable. This means that the owners of the mines WANT the strike. They are ready for it, and they think it had better come.

The fact that they are ready is proved to you in this column.

The small picture which you see is a reproduction of a photograph. It shows one of the enormous mountains of coal which have been accumulated along the line of the Boston & Maine Railroad. This particular store of coal is near the Somerville station.

Other mountains of coal bigger than these are stored away in different parts of the country.

The Railroad Trust and the Coal Trust—they are united and they are the same—FEEL THAT THEY HAVE THE PUBLIC NOW AT THEIR MERCY AND THE MINERS AT THEIR MERCY, ALSO.

They make this clear in threats against the public—threats which remind us of Mr. Baer when he called the people "whining dogs" because they asked for cheaper coal.

The Coal Trust tells the people that if they sympathize TOO MUCH with the mine workers, and demand better pay for those workers, THE TRUST WILL RAISE THE PRICE OF COAL A DOLLAR AND TWENTY CENTS PER TON to begin, and make the people sweat.

What it means is that it will MAKE THE PEOPLE FREEZE.

But the Coal Trust, with all its intelligent leadership, its highly-paid, conscienceless corporation lawyers, with all its great mountains of coal piled up, with all its contempt for the rights of labor, and its belief IN THE RIGHT OF CAPITAL TO RULE, forgets just one thing.

The Coal Trust forgets that the people have in their possession, and always will have, a peculiar instrument of justice known as THE RIGHT OF EMINENT DOMAIN.

By the right of eminent domain the people of the country can at any moment take any COAL MINE, any inch of ground, any pile of coal stored up in the United States, if they please.

The mine owners are in a comfortable position now. They have piled up along the railroad tracks in one region more than nine million tons of coal. They threaten to add $1.20 a ton to the price of coal, just as a starter. That would give them a very nice little income to start with.

Naturally they feel rather gay and indifferent when they look forward to selling at an exorbitant price the mountains of coal which the miners dug out of the ground for very low wages.

To be able to starve out the miners and at the same time freeze out the public is a cheerful prospect for any ordinary trust manager, beyond a doubt.

But those same trust managers ought not, in their excitement and joy, to forget that old right of EMINENT DOMAIN. It is the kind of a right that the people are apt to remember SUDDENLY, if they find that their workers are ground down too hard and the price of coal put up too high.

The people are slow to anger; they don't punish their enemies often enough or severely enough.

But some day, if the trusts persist in their arrogance, they will have that right of eminent domain applied to them to an extent that will give Wall Street gamblers such chills and fever as they never had before and drive more common sense into the trust manager's head than he ever thought it would hold.

Among things that men won't stand indefinitely are cold and hunger. And another thing that they won't stand is systematic taxation of their pockets when they REALIZE the taxation.

The Coal Trust may succeed this time. It may laugh at its men; tell them to go out and starve. It may laugh at the public and say, "To punish you for sympathizing with labor we will charge you $1.20 a ton extra for your coal, ALTHOUGH THE COAL IS MINED RIGHT BESIDE THE RAILROAD TRACKS AND HAS COST US NOTHING EXTRA."

This particular joke on the American people may be successfully perpetrated. But the patience of the people will stand only just so much pressure, and this latest Coal Trust idea will help to the final breaking point.

When the breaking point DOES come the Coal Trust will see its large mountains of coal distributed to the people at a perfectly fair valuation DECIDED BY THE PEOPLE, NOT BY THE THIEVES OF THE TRUSTS. And it will see its mines taken out of its hands, and its railroads as well, and worked for the benefit of consumers and producers—no longer for the benefit of schemers exclusively.

THEY LOOK FOR MORE FASHIONABLE APARTMENTS

To Mark Twain

Whose Wicked Works, "Huckleberry Finn" and "Tom S[illegible]er," Have Been Banished from a Brooklyn Library.

By James J. Montague

ALAS! Unhappy old Mark Twain
Your works are not refined,
And may no longer entertain
The simple, childish mind.
For tales of wicked boys that play
At being robber kings
(And even sometimes run away)
Are very dreadful things!

WE needs must shield our tender youth
From such a wretch as you,
Lest they perchance should grow uncouth,
Like youngsters used to do;
Lest they should learn to romp and play
And fill the world with noise,
So that their maiden aunts might say:
"What rude and rowdy boys!"

WHY, your Tom Sawyer was a lad,
With not one saving grace;
He wore no shoes, and often had
A very dirty face.
And certainly a modern child,
Whose day is at its dawn,
Should never read about such wild
And wanton goings-on.

AND how can any boy forget
The harmful lesson in
The horrible example set
By Huckleberry Finn?
The grammar which that gamin used
Was frightful, and his lies
Are quite unfit to be perused
By prudent little eyes.

AND, knave, to make your purpose sure,
With cunning, crafty art,
You clothed those youngsters with a lure
That snares the childish heart!
In vain wiseacres may appeal,
Your victims will not heed 'em;
But, quite bewitched by you, will steal
The tabooed books, and read 'em.

LONG, long ago I learned full well
The swift and subtle charm
You wove into your tragic spell
To bring us all to harm;
For, as a careless boy, I, too,
Fell victim to your art,
And read those dog-eared volumes through
Till I knew both by heart.

It is good to live the unknown.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox

She Urges All Women to Learn Some Line of Work Which Will Occupy Their Hours in Middle Life

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1906, by American-Journal-Examiner.

ARE you, my dear madam, doing anything with your life besides taking good care of your children?

Let me urge you to add some outside interest to this profession of motherhood. Some study, some art, some trade that will give you an individual interest after motherhood's duties are over.

It is possible you are one of the eternal mothers, one of the women who will be happy to sit at another's fireside and be the grandmother, nurse and seamstress for the children of your children.

But even so you may find unsympathetic and unwilling sons and daughters-in-law to make this life impossible for you, and if this fate should fall to your lot what a blessing you will find working in some employment with which you are familiar and in which you are skilled.

If you are not the born grandmother, but the mother, happy in her own household, and of the temperament which could never endure the second place in any household, then the choice of some occupation is an imperative duty.

For years of restlessness, discontent and loneliness may direct you otherwise.

Only recently I have encountered such a woman. Widowed, and her children married, left with a small income and nothing to do, born to lead and control and incapable of accepting any secondary role as helper in her children's homes, a more discontented and restless woman it would be hard to find.

"Tell me something to do—something in which I can employ my time and make myself an independent home," was this woman's cry.

There are hundreds of such women scattered through the land.

Sheltered and cared for in comfort during wifehood and maternity, they find themselves stranded and virtually alone at the half-century mark, with their accustomed work done, and yet with their vital forces strong and their ambitions still burning, but with no goal in sight and a lonely old age.

Dressmaking, millinery, music, teaching a drawing school, a cooking school, stenography, a teacher of languages—any occupation that means usefulness and independence—would be happiness to such women.

Many of these can be studied while a woman is young and caring for her children.

I know one widow who could obtain a position as traveling chaperon if she spoke the French language.

This study she might have taken up in her early life had she wished to do so or foreseen the ultimate need of it.

The acquirement of a language is always an accomplishment, and almost every young mother can find time to study one tongue besides her own if she wills to do so.

One hour even each day, given persistently to any one pursuit, will achieve wonders.

Begin something to-day!

THROUGH their control of the railroads, which are the natural highways, the Standard Oil gentlemen have come to be known as the most successful highwaymen of all time. And now Fortune has new favors for these men of financial fame. We note that H. H. Rogers has been appointed Superintendent of Streets in Fairhaven, Mass.
